

Question: Has the Cold Weather Ever Stopped Us? Answer: No!

You, your family and visitors spend more time inside during winter and winter is the ultimate test of your home. Think back to last winter, what parts of your home were a struggle when everyone was inside? Chances are that basic functionality wasn't a huge issue, houses are made to be functional, however, the functionality should be comfortable and it can usually be improved. Your home should be comfortable, especially when you spend most of your free time there. Increased comfort is improved functionality. Here are a number of projects you can tackle during the winter that would improve your home's comfort and functionality.

To keep the noise level down: sticky, tightly latching doorknobs sound violent at night, and are likely to wake your loved ones. It doesn't take much to quiet noisy or tight doorknobs. Also, in a day, all your interior doors can be replaced. You will be surprised how much new doors add to the comfort of your home. There are many styles to choose.

Trim can go a long way to change the comfort of your home. Trim is the difference between a modern room and a Victorian-style room. All trim anywhere in your home can be freshened and re-styled. As always you will get the professional cuts and professional installation you have come to expect at One Stop Home Repair. Fresh paint in a slightly contrasting color helps the energy of a room.

Electricity is the heart of a home's functionality. It matters that there are well placed lights, and conveniently located outlets. What is your home lacking? In just a few hours, our electrician can install electrical components where you need them most.

A well organized, illuminated closet saves time in the morning because there is less chance of grabbing uncoordinated clothing. Regardless of the type of shelving you are looking for, custom or a kit, One Stop Home Repair can help you install it and add lights.

Comfort should also line your pockets with money saved. During the heating season before the snow gets too deep, One Stop Home Repair recommends an energy efficiency inspection. With the help of a thermal imaging camera One Stop Home Repair can determine where your home is losing heat. There is always a loss of heat through doors and windows and only a certain amount should be acceptable. There shouldn't be any heat loss in walls and ceilings. If there are places where your home could use insulation, there are unobtrusive ways to add more. Top off your energy efficient home with a programmable thermostat, some can even connect to your smart phone.

Throughout winter, One Stop Home Repair is here. Give us a call, we will be glad to handle all your indoor needs. “Where One Call Does It All!” 866-5690

Meet the Crew - Lisa Bates

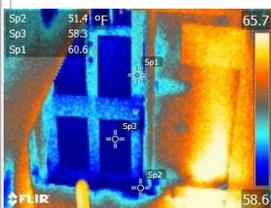

The handy“man” you've likely seen in the field is Lisa Bates. Lisa joins us with more than 15 years experience in many aspects of remodeling and weatherization. She lives in Bradley with 4 dogs of all different sizes.

Lisa specializes in weatherization and insulation installation, and painting. She has knowledge on how to handle and remove lead-based products safely. She is familiar with many parts of remodeling and home repair.

Lisa learned a lot about how to repair homes, through working with many people who work in the same or similar fields as well as fixing up her own home. By working with Penquis Cap, her qualifications and certifications have been kept up to date.

Lisa is always cheerful and always looks forward to having something to do, and loves working with her “excellent co-workers”.

In her spare time, Lisa enjoys spending time with her grandchildren and working on several of her home projects.
